And More Records:

From Member Evelyn Paul: I very much enjoyed the Bible Records in the latest of WCGS NEWS. The Fitzgerald-Spruill Family Bible records I had submitted in the past were partially included. I am forwarding to you my entire transcription of these records for my family. The Bible is in the possession of my mother Sadie Simpson Paul. I look forward to reviewing the additional records planned for the next issue.

Family Reunion

A "First Cousins Reunion" was held by the grandchildren of the late Charles Montgomery and Leona Rawls Beacham on Saturday, Sept. 23. Cousins met at the Jacksonville home of Melton Gray "Feet" and Leona Coltrain Lilley Saturday morning and shared a covered dish lunch.

The day was spent catching up on the latest additions to the family, discussing Beacham, memorabilia and viewing old photographs, as well as the latest ones of grandbabies. After lunch, Leona led the group in a game designed to "break the ice."

Charlie and Leona Beacham were married in Beaufort County but relocated their family to the Macedonia Church community where they spent many years farming before health forced their retirement. Of their five children, only two daughters-in-law are living: Sidney's widow, Nossie Lee Taylor Beacham, who was a special guest Saturday, and Mary Frances Hadley Beacham, widow of Carl Lee, who was unable to attend for health reasons. Their son, Carl ("Piggum" to his cousins) and wife, Ora Dallice, represented them. Sidney and Nossie Lee's family was represented by daughter Mary Lee and husband, Charles Askew.

The family of Claude Nicholas and Sallie Griffin Beacham, was represented by Shirleyan and Harrison Phelps of Washington County.

Children of Jennie Gray and Jasper Rogerson attending the reunion of first cousins were Dr. John Edward Rogerson and wife, Marti and Barbara Rogerson Rawls. Myrtie married Robert Coltrain and was represented Saturday by the hostess, Leona, and her husband; by James Robert Coltrain, and by Mertie Harrison Coltrain, widow of the late Charlie Gray, oldest of the Beacham grandchildren.

The beautiful fall weather was perfect for the gathering, held in the spacious back yard of the Lilleys., evidence to the fact Leona is a certified Master Gardener. Before lunch was served, the family gathered in a circle, joined hands and were led in prayer by Feet. Photos were made before good-bys were said, with promises to "stay in touch."

Charles Montgomery Beacham was the son of William and Jane Lilley Beacham. Leona's parents were Nicholas and Sidney Roberson Rawls. Of their 18 grandchildren, four have died: Sidney Taylor, Howard Kenneth, Nicholas Wayne Beacham and Charlie Gray Coltrain. (Children of Charles and Leona: Sidney, Myrtie, Nicholas, Carl Lee and Jennie Gray.)

CONCORD HOMECOMING 2006

It's a matter of names. Whether you sign yours Ambrose but tell folks who ask that you live on the Ambros / Amberse Road, it's a matter of names. Maybe you're listed on the tax rolls as Davenport but you identify yourself as a Demport, it is still a matter of names. At least, that's what Rev. Frank Alexander told folks attending the homecoming on Saturday at Concord.

Rev. Alexander talked about the time he and wife, Millie, came to make their home in Washington County and someone asked where they lived. The preacher kept repeating they lived on the Ambrose Road. But he couldn't make it clear where that was. He finally explained they were living in the neighborhood where Millie was raised.

"Oh! You mean on the Ambers Road!"

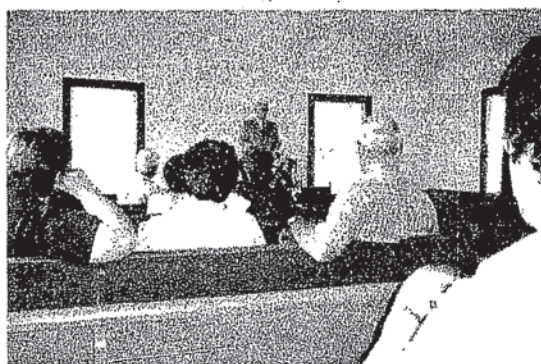

And, you can tell when one is from the south. At the ripe old age of 16, Rev. Alexander accompanied his brother to Washington DC. That, he explained was quite an experience for a Tyrrell County kid who'd never been further than Belhaven.

His story described the Mayflower Hotel, where each elevator had a human operator to open and close the doors, push the buttons, etc. When the two Alexanders walked into the elevator, they spoke to the operator, a colored man.

"You folks must be from the south," he suggested. "Folks up north don't speak to elevator operators."

The next day, the same man was on duty. They exchanged smiles and greetings and he told them he was from a little town in North Carolina, too - Creswell. The brothers said they were from Columbia and that almost made them neighbors. "It almost makes us kinfolk," came the reply.

Rev. Alexander was invited to speak to descendants of church members, family and friends at the annual homecoming held to remember the role Concord has played in the history of the community, the county, and the Primitive Baptist denomination throughout the area. He began by describing the old meeting house as being a sacred place and expressed appreciation to members and friends of Concord Primitive Baptist Church Preservation Society, Inc., a non-profit organization chartered for the sole purpose of preserving and maintaining the only known meeting house in the county.

Citing information garnered from Mark Bateman, actively involved in the preservation of Bethlehem PBC near Columbia, Rev. Alexander talked about the Kehukee Association. (Folks in Washington and Tyrrell Counties who were of the Primitive Baptist faith were often called "Kehukee-ites.")

Rev. Alexander kept his listeners' attention as he skillfully wove local tales into the main point of his message: having one's name on the list that truly counts. Referring to the strict discipline of Concord and its members (members were at times dismissed for actions such as "the sin of dancing."), Rev. Alexander asked would it not be great to have our country embracing stricter moral codes. He suggested that folks who didn't have a copy of Concord's minutes buy one and read them carefully.

A graduate of Columbia High School, Rev. Alexander attended UNC and then spent four years in the U. S. Navy during the Korean conflict. Called to the ministry in 1970, he went to Duke Divinity School. He has served Methodist churches across the state since that time, presently serving the Albemarle Charge at Mackeys, Roper and Pleasant Grove. He and Millie (Woodley) have two sons: Ed and Lee. He was introduced on Saturday by Gloria June Davenport and was presented a copy of the church minutes.

As has happened more than once during the church's almost 200-year history, wet grounds and mosquitoes caused tables to be spread inside the meeting house. Dinner-on-the-ground became dinner-in-the pew as folks feasted on country vegetables, salads, chicken and BBQ and fried lace corn bread. And talked about more names - including Furlough/Furlaw; Jordan/Jurden.

About 50 folks attended Homecoming 2006, traveling from across the state and Eastern Virginia. James Carroll Davenport led the group in the singing of favorite old hymns. The blessing of the food was by Brian Keith Phelps. A time of silent prayer for America, for the nation's military, and for those devastated by recent natural disasters was followed by prayer by Rev. Dustin Sprouse, minister at Mt. Herman UMC. Following the church's tradition, financial gifts were laid on the altar as the congregation sang a hymn.

Concord is maintained solely through memberships in the non-profit organization, by sale of the minutes and by gifts from friends. Maude Grace Davenport of Mackeys is the treasurer. Folks wanting copies of the church minutes can contact Loretta Phelps at Creswell or Shirleyan Phelps in Plymouth. (Reprint from Roanoke Beacon 9/20/2006)

QUERY: Glenn N. Dickens - We recently had a phone query from someone wanting to help Glenn Dickens in her search for info on Joseph Stockton Norman. In an E-mail response to a message, she responded: "I think I have some wrong information because I have always been told that Joseph Stockton Norman was my great, great grandfather, but according to the cemetery records that you sent, it should have been Joseph Swift Norman. Joseph Stockton was his son, evidently, and a brother to my great grandfather, Swain Swift Norman. I really appreciate all of your trouble. . . I did receive some information from Virginia Haire, but pretty much what you sent, records from the cemetery. I don't understand though, the deeds I was able to decipher said that Joseph Stockton was married to Elizabeth Chesson, not Joseph Swift. Anyway, I am going to try and get it straight. Thanks so much. Glenn; gndickens@earthlink.net. Can anyone help? [Please share w/WCGS for inclusion in next issue!]

WCGS MEETING: Next meeting, Sunday 15 October 2:30 p.m. - Last meeting of 2006; election of officers for 2007-2008. We have changed location, which will be posted in local newspapers. Please e-mail for more details: shirleyan32@earthlink.net. AND, we hope everyone who uses E-mail will be courteous enough to respect the privacy of all who use the Internet. Use mail lists, or blind copies - and if someone forwards something to you too good not to share, clean it up a bit, specially when dozens of folks addresses are there for the whole world to see and abuse. Thanks for caring.
